Dear Mr Jamieson,

Thank you for your email for which we acknowledge receipt. We also note that you have written in similar terms to two members of the current committee.

The inquiry that you mention was undertaken by the previous committee in session 6 and is now closed. As such, we do not intend to publish additional evidence to a former committee's inquiry. You are free to publish any of the correspondence you have sent us on your own website and circulate directly to new members. The inquiry in question was publicised on the then committee's website, as was all evidence received at the time as well as the final report and the responses from both governments to the findings.

The new committee will be deciding on its work programme after the summer recess.

Kind regards

Clerks to the Europe, External Affairs and Culture Committee

Dear CEEAC Committee Convenor,

Re: Formal Response to the 2nd Report, 2026 (Session 6) of the Constitution, Europe, External Affairs and Culture Committee (SP Paper 1030) of the Scottish Parliament.

Please see attached formal written response from Liberation Scotland to the above Committee Report, published by the Scottish Parliament on 26 February 2026.

Liberation Scotland has a legitimate right of reply to this Committee Report, since our organisation is named in one of the written submissions (by Professor Aileen McHarg - refer item 4 in Annexe C) with this being made publicly available and linked to the report on the government website. We were not given notice of the inquiry, the report, the references to our work, the right of reply, or that it would be placed in the public domain.

Our formal detailed (and externally critiqued) response raises legitimate concerns over the methodology, analysis, legal correctness and findings of the Committee Report.

We respectfully request that our response is published as a publicly available supplement in order to correct the public record.

Representatives from Liberation Scotland would be pleased to give further evidence to the CEEAC Committee (in person or online) if required.

Please let me know if you have any questions regarding the attached documents or require any additional information.

Kind Regards

Diarmid Jamieson

Secretary, The Liberation Scotland Committee 23 July 2026
